If you are viewing this page, your Acrobat reader is configured properly for your browser.

Some browsers have difficulty loading large .pdf files (4mb or larger). If your Acrobat loads to a blank screen, this could be the cause. To correct this problem, the .pdf file should be located in your c:\windows\temporary internet files directory on your PC. Simply copy the .pdf file in question and paste it to the c:\temp directory or some other directory of your choice, then double click on the .pdf file in the new directory to view. In most cases this process will bring up the document for viewing on your system.
